SEMINAR DESCRIPTION

Religious facilities serve people of all faiths and denominations in the Greater Akron area. Religious facilities are generally open-access public assembly venues that have been successfully targeted by terrorists on numerous occasions in the past. Typically, religious facilities offer generally unrestricted access to religious services, parking areas and separate educational facilities; building systems that are vulnerable to fire, contamination and blocked exits; and nonprofit status with limited resources for security. While many faith-based institutions are prepared to handle petty crime, most are not prepared to respond or mitigate more serious threats. This half-day seminar is intended to bring together faith-based ministries and other places of worship to help foster a culture of resiliency.

The seminar includes:

- Potential indicators of terrorist activity
- Terrorist planning cycle
- Hate crime trends & prosecutions
- Planning & preparedness
- Access control
- Crisis communications
- Cyber-security
- Incident response

Continental breakfast provided by Summa Health.
